Purse-Size Mending Kits

Using an empty clear plastic typing ribbon box as a container, assemble cute and practical mending kits to carry in the purse. A tiny round cushion is pasted to inside center of lid to hold needles and pins. Assorted colored thread and darning cotton is wound on small cardboard cylinders (the same height as the box) and arranged around outer edge of box. The center holds thimble, needle threader and a few replacement snaps and buttons. Another item appreciated by the girls is a tiny sample size bottle of clear nail polish for stopping runs in nylons. Bottle is labeled and toothpicks for applying included. A loop of tape pasted to the lid holds a tiny pair of scissors which completes the kit. Kits cost only 50c-60c to assemble and are popular sellers at $1.25-$1.50.

Tie-On For Baby Shower

I have been knitting miniature booties to tie on baby gifts. I make them very much like the original pattern only many times smaller. The smallest pair measures 1 inch through the foot and others are up to 2 1/4 inches. I use 3-ply baby yarn and size 1 plastic knitting needles. When finished, I tie them together with a short piece of yarn and leave enough to tie the package. They can also be used as doll shoes. These sell for 10c to 29c a pair.

Puppet Doorstops

Several years ago my daughter received a clown hand puppet for a birthday present. She had no interest in playing with it and I hated the thought of discarding it, so I made it into an attractive little doorstop. Many people find these both practical and decorative and I have received a number of orders for them. I fill the arms and head with cotton and the middle of the body with a few large stones or gravel. I round out the sharp angles with more cotton. The puppets can be purchased for about 70c and sell for $1.25.

Tempting Breads

Baking bread is a most rewarding experience. Your family and friends will enjoy the homebaked goodies you give them. Why not revive the old custom of bringing a hostess a loaf of freshly-baked bread? There is great versatility to breads—they can be a mealtime main feature or serve equally well as supporting companions to other foods. Breads today can be as simple or as elaborate and intricate as you wish. Raisins, dates, herbs, fruits, spices, cheese are only a few ingredients that can be used in making breads nowadays. We wish you'd try these variations given on these pages. Happy breadmaking!

- ⅔ cup milk

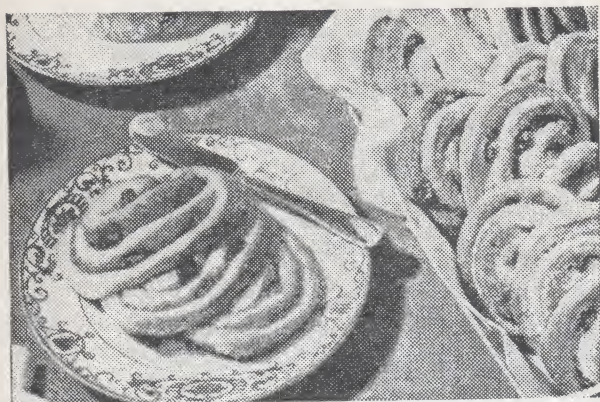

Heat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Sift together first four ingredients. Add egg, molasses, sugar, shortening, lemon juice and rind, fruits, and nuts. Mix well. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. - 2½ cups sifted flour (about)
- ¼ cup margarine (½ stick)
- ⅓ cup brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons melted margarine
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Scald milk, stir in sugar, salt and margarine, cool to lukewarm. Measure very warm water into large bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast, stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, beaten egg and half the flour, beat until well blended. Stir in remaining flour to make soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and satiny, about 5 minutes. Shape into ball, place in greased bowl, turning once to grease top of dough. Cover, let rise in warm place free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Meanwhile, melt ¼ cup margarine, stir in ⅓ cup brown sugar and honey, bring to rolling boil. Spread immediately in jelly roll pan, let stand. Punch dough down, turn out onto lightly floured board. Roll out into 12-inch square. Brush with 2 tablespoons melted margarine. Sprinkle center third with half of the ⅓ cup brown sugar and cinnamon. Fold one third over center third. Sprinkle with remaining sugar and cinnamon. Fold remaining third over the two layers. Cut with sharp knife crosswise into strips about 1 inch wide. Take hold of each end of strip and twist. Seal ends firmly. Place in prepared pan about 1½ inches apart. Cover, let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 20 minutes, invert pan immediately. Makes 12.

These delicious Frosted Fruit Rolls will make the mid-morning coffee break an extra special occasion.

Frosted Fruit Rolls

- ½ cup very warm water
- 2 packages or cakes yeast, active dry or compressed
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup margarine
- 4½ to 5 cups sifted flour
- strawberry preserves, orange marmalade
- confectioners' sugar frosting
- yellow and red food coloring

Measure water into large bowl. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into water, stir until dissolved. Add milk, sugar, salt and lemon rind. Stir in eggs, margarine and 2 cups of the flour, mix well. Stir in 2½ cups more of the flour, and just enough of the remaining ½ cup necessary to make the dough easy to handle.

Turn the dough out onto a lightly floured board and knead, about 5 minutes, until it is smooth and elastic and doesn't stick to board. Place dough in a greased bowl, turning once to bring the greased side up. Cover with a damp cloth and let rise in a warm place (85°), free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours. Punch dough down and pull edges to center. Turn dough completely over in bowl and let rise again until almost double, about 45 minutes.

Punch dough down and shape into balls about 1½ inches in diameter. Place them on a greased baking sheet and let rise until light, about 30 minutes. When light, make a depression in the center of each ball with your thumb. Fill with any kind of preserves or fruit filling. Bake at 400°F. 20 to 25 minutes until brown. Tint confectioners' sugar frosting with drop or two of yellow or red food coloring and frost as desired.

Filled Egg Bread

- 2 packages yeast, compressed or dry
- ¼ cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry)
- 1 cup milk
- ⅓ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 5½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 4 eggs
- ½ cup poppy seeds
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped almonds
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Add butter or margarine, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour and beat well. Add softened yeast and vanilla extract. Add eggs one at a time and beat thoroughly. Add enough more flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). Meanwhile, add poppy seeds to milk. When dough is doubled, punch down. Divide dough into 2 equal portions and let rest 10 minutes. Add butter or margarine, almonds and lemon rind to poppy seed mixture. Mix well. Roll each half of dough out to rectangle, 6 x 18 inches. Spread with about half of filling. Roll up into loaf shape and press edges together, securely to seal. Place in greased loaf pans 4½ x 8½ inches. Let rise until doubled (about 1 hour). Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 40 minutes. Makes 2 loaves.

Mix well. Pour into 4 greased number 2 cans, filling each ¾ full. Cover with metal foil or 2 layers of brown paper tied in place with a strong cord. Steam 2 hours, counting from the time water begins to boil. Yield 4 loaves.

As high as an angel or chiffon cake, light-textured French Savarin Bread is also baked in a tube pan.

Add enough more flour to make a stiff batter. Beat thoroughly until smooth. Cover and let rise in warm place until bubbly (about 1 hour). Stir down. Turn batter into well-greased 10-inch tube pan or two well-greased 1¼-quart ring molds. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes for tube pan and about 30 minutes for ring molds). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 35 minutes for tube pan and 25 to 30 minutes for ring molds. Remove from pan and cool. “Because I was nervous to my fingertips, my doctor started me on Postum.”

“You can imagine how it worried me, when I found it hard to thread a needle! Of course I wasn’t sleeping very well, but I hadn’t realized how unsteady I’d become. Time to see the doctor, I told myself.

“‘Can’t find anything wrong,’ the doctor told me, ‘unless maybe you’ve been drinking too much coffee.’ It seems some people can’t take the caffeine in coffee. ‘Change to Postum,’ the doctor advised. ‘It’s 100% caffeine-free—can’t make you nervous or keep you awake!’

“Well—I’ve been blessing the doctor and Postum ever since! My nerves are much steadier, I sleep much better, and I really enjoy drinking Postum. My only regret is that I didn’t change to Postum sooner!”

Flower and Garden Forum

During the fall and winter my Patience plant grew rather tall. However, the lower leaves are dropping off. Should the plant be repotted? Mrs. W. L. B., North Carolina

Patience plant, Impatiens sultani, produces a wealth of bloom at any season but as a rule it is at its best in late winter and early spring, for they do best when the light is not too strong. A plant that blooms during winter tends to become leggy by spring. Cut such a plant back and repot it, preferably in a smaller pot, using sandy rich soil. Until it is established in the new pot, water it only moderately. After it is growing vigorously, feed it with a weak solution of soluble complete fertilizer. It is really best to take cuttings from old plants in February and discard the old plant. The new plants will be nice bushy plants by spring. Cuttings rooted in August and kept pinched should make good winter blooming plants.

I have a sultana which is growing nicely in a good black potting soil. The foliage is lovely but the plant has never bloomed. There are many sugary feeling, white, minute globules hanging on the undersides of the limbs. What is wrong with my plant? Mrs. W.E.L., Colorado.

If the sultana is growing nicely yet fails to bloom it is likely due to insufficient light. While the sultana requires moderate shade during summer, to bloom well it must have full light through the winter months. The white minute globules are the secretions of insect pests, either scale, aphids or white flies. Watch for these pests and also for mealy bugs. They all frequent the sultana and should be destroyed by sprays as soon as discovered. Any of these pests will limit the blooming ability of the plant.

I have had a sea-onion for several years but it doesn't seem to make much headway. How should I take care of this bulb? H. J. S., Kentucky.

The sea-onion, Urginea maritima, is a bulb and should remain undisturbed in the same container from year to year. It must be given a rest period through the winter, during which time it should be kept dry. In spring the plant should be given a top dressing of rotted manure and watered sparingly until growth starts. Place the plant in full sun after the bulb starts to grow and water more freely as growth progresses. Reverse the process after maturity, until the bulb is finally dormant and dry.

I have a plant we call birds-nest fern. It is a beautiful, large one, but as new leaves form, the old ones turn brown and drop off. Also, some of the large leaves split and turn up around the edge. What causes this? I have it in a north window. Mrs. C. H., Idaho.

The birds-nest fern has the peculiar habit of growing from the inside of the crown of leaves. It is only natural that as new leaves develop on the inner edge, old leaves die at the outer edge. Otherwise the plant would eventually have an impossible number of leaves to support. Lack of humidity in the air around the fern hastens the death of the outer leaves and also causes them to curl and split. If possible increase the moisture content of the air around the plant and see to it that it gets plenty of water at all times.

Will you please tell me how to start and care for an avocado plant? Mrs. C. A., Kansas

The seed of an avocado will germinate readily if it is fastened in a glass of water with the base of the seed just at the water level. As soon as roots start, the seed should be potted in rich porous soil. The container should have an opening in the bottom so it will drain properly. Use a small container to start, and repot the plant from time to time as it becomes root bound. The plant likes a warm and sunny location and will soon produce shiny green leaves that are attractive in the window ledge garden.

I received a Kalanchoe last Mother's Day. I know these never bloom but once and I tried to slip it to start new plants. I cut leaves at the end of the stalk and put them in pots, but none took root. What am I doing wrong, and how should I start new plants? Mrs. I. H., Michigan.

The secret of making cuttings of the Kalanchoe is to take a little of the stem with each leaf cutting. The bud that makes the new plant is at the axil of the short leaf petiole and it must be removed with the leaf. Then the leaves are stuck in sand or some other rooting medium, just like an African violet. Soon each leaf will produce a new plant due to the growth of this dormant bud at the base of the leaf. Without this bud even if the leaf produces roots no new plant will appear.

My Cattleya orchid plant has filled the pot completely and has air roots all over the top. I wonder if it should be repotted in a larger pot. If so, what kind of soil should be used? F. B., California.

So long as the new leads of the Cattleya orchid plant do not extend over the rim of the pot and so long as the material in the pot is not soggy and decomposed the plant doesn't need repotting. The aerial roots that appear are an indication of good healthy growth and are useful to the plant. Don't worry about getting them into the potting medium for they are of more value to the plant where they are. When you do decide to repot the plant use osmunda fiber. Many other products are used and recommended such as tree fern fiber, shredded fir bark, and cocoanut husks, but osmunda is the almost universally used potting medium.

How should I go about starting additional plants from a tuberous begonia? Mrs. O. S., Indiana

Additional tuberous rooted begonias may be obtained by either making cuttings from a growing plant or by dividing a tuber when it first sprouts. They are most easily and commonly grown from seed. To start new plants from one now growing, cuttings may be made. Using a sharp knife, take a 4-inch cutting leaving at least two nodes below the cut so the plant will make new breaks. Make the cut at the base of a leaf. Remove the bottom leaf and the growth alongside. Dip the base of the cutting in either powdered charcoal or a rooting hormone. Plant it in a glass or plastic covered box or under a fruit jar in a shaded place outdoors. Plant it in a mixture of one-half sand and one-half peat and keep it only moderately moist.

Azaleas And Rhododendrons

Bernice Brilmayer

Among the flowering shrubs that put on the most colorful show in spring are the large leather-leaved rhododendrons and the smaller azaleas (also members of the rhododendron family) with clusters of flaring trumpet flowers in almost every color in the rainbow, and in massed profusion. In some sections of the country, almost all types are relatively easy to grow. In other areas, where there are extremes of heat or cold, they require some special attention. But they are undeniably worth any trouble.

Both rhododendrons have similar habits of growth and similar cultural needs. They are shallow-rooted shrubs, so they should not be cultivated deeply; and they require watering, during drought, when the top layer of soil may dry out. All insist on acid soil; they will not tolerate lime in any form, and show their resistance by poor growth, yellowing leaves, and eventual death. All need protection against hot midsummer sun, preferably light or dappled shade as under a high branched tree. They resent extreme heat, drought, and dry air.

Most of these requirements can be met, in one way or another, in nearly any garden. The shallow roots can be mulched to keep them cool, keep the soil more moist. Neutral or alkaline soil can be acidified by the use of ordinary sulfur, aluminum sulfate, or ammonium sulfate (best with the advice of your County Agricultural Agent or some similar authority). The plants can be grown in lightly shaded areas—on the shady side of a house or garden wall, for example, under the protection of tall trees. And, of course, they can be misted with a hose and well watered, to offset dry air and winds.

Azaleas

Early spring planting is best, although the shrubs can be selected at the nursery when they are in full flower and, if they are growing in cans or the roots are "balled and baled" in burlap, planted at that time. Dig a planting hole at least twice as large as the root ball; enrich the soil with peat or leaf-mold (and add some coarse sand, if drainage is poor) before placing it around the roots. Set the plant as deep as it was planted before, and firm the soil before watering it thoroughly and deep. Keep the soil constantly moist, but not muddy, all summer and up to the time the ground freezes hard. For the first winter at least, you may want to protect the branches with a screen of evergreen boughs, or a loose wrapping of burlap. Young azaleas can be covered with an overturned bushel basket.

If you have never grown these shrubs before, start with the easiest, least expensive deciduous azaleas (usually considered hardier than the evergreen types) available under several group names. The Ghent hybrids have medium-sized flowers, slightly fragrant, in shades of yellow and orange-red. The Mollis hybrids are more mixed yellows and apricots. The more recently developed Knap Hill hybrids have larger flowers, a wider range of colors, and stronger fragrance.

Among evergreen azaleas, the Glenn Dale hybrids are usually considered the hardiest and most reliable, almost sure-fire in climates like that of Washington, D. C. The Southern Indian hybrids are suitable for growing in the south. The Indicas are fairly hardy, at least in mild climates—as are also the Kurume, Kaempferi, and Gable hybrids. Some may lose most of their leaves in severe winters, but will survive. The Belgian Indian hybrids are primarily tender forcing varieties.

If you order hybrid rhododendrons by mail, you may find them offered either by named varieties, or simply by choice of color—lavender, red, pink, purple, and white. For both rhododendrons and azaleas, however, you are most likely to get just the color you want and like if you buy the shrubs when and where you see them in flower.

Begonias in the Window Box

Pearle M. Goodwin

Every home has a window box that doesn't receive sunlight all day. The problem is to find plants that will be luxuriant all summer long under these conditions. The answer is wax begonias, and even better are some of the new hybrids. White Christmas begonia is new this year. The tight little blooms are fully double camellia-type. The color is pure white with just a hint of lemon yellow in base of the blooms. How beautiful White Christmas would be planted with the other lovely hued begonias.

Begonias can be started from seed in flats of an equal mixture of compost, good loam and peat moss with a sprinkling of sand. The seedling plants can be placed in 2½-inch peat pots and placed in the window box which has been prepared with the same ratio potting mixture. Once a month feed the plants with a complete soluble plant food, and water in between only when the need is apparent.

The plants can be potted up for the home or greenhouse in the fall and held over for another year. If new plants are desired, the mother plant can be slipped in February or March and the slips started in sand or water.

The north and east window boxes can be as pretty as any other box when you use begonias.

Mums in January? Certainly!

Catherine Hastings

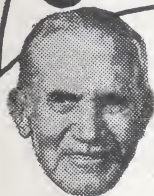

Although lovely, chrysanthemums generally represent the end of the outdoor flower season. Ordinarily there follows a flowerless period for the gardener until geranium cuttings or forced bulbs begin their indoor bloom. However, this time can be filled with colorful potted mums. Why envy the florist who sends out those beautiful hothouse specimens when you can raise your own? A little time and effort can reward the grower with plants almost as lovely.

Mums

In July, when making the last hard pinch on chrysanthemums, cuttings may be taken for potted mums by making the pinching a little deeper than usual. Cuttings should be about 4½ inches in length. Remove only the lower leaves so that cutting will not be stripped of its foliage. Treat with a rooting hormone and place in flats of vermiculite.

To preserve humidity, place a plastic cover over the container in which supports have been made of heavy wire or an old coat hanger. This cover should be lightly pressed to the sides of flat. However, there should be some circulation of air through the cover to prevent "damp-ing off."

The rooting progress may be checked by pulling lightly on cutting. If roots are developing satisfactorily, usually in about three to five weeks, the plant will tend to cling to the vermiculite. If not, it will slip easily out of the rooting medium. When roots have developed sufficiently, cuttings should be potted in 3 or 4-inch pots. After a few days of adjusting to the soil medium, pots should be buried in a flower bed where they can receive moisture and sun just as other bedded chrysanthemums.

Plants must be shifted to larger pots whenever the roots become crowded. Final potting should be made in pots from 6 to 10 inches in diameter. During this period of their outdoor growth, the plants should be turned often to discourage the roots from emerging through the drain-age hole.

Remove all side growths from the plants as they develop. At the first indications of light frost, raise plants from bed, wash carefully, spray for insects, and then place in isolation for a few hours before putting with other house plants.

During this critical stage of adjustment, it is advisable to keep the leaves of plant well sprayed with water. Otherwise, leaves are likely to yellow and fall off. Care should be exercised in maintaining as high humidity as possible in the house. It is advisable to arrange pots on a tray of damp sand or chicken grits to supply humidity desirable for healthy plants. An occasional spraying with water helps to keep plants in good condition throughout growing period. I find it quite easy to hold the pots over the sink so that I may spray only leaves without wetting the soil.

Do not keep soil wet, but do not let it become bone dry before re-watering. Watering should be done occasionally by placing the pot in a large pail of water and letting the soil soak up the moisture through the clay pot. This method helps prevent soil from packing and forming a hard ball of earth around which water will flow without even touching the plant roots.

Potted mums may be fed prepared plant food about once every two or three weeks to insure large desirable flowers. Careful feeding and a large sunny window will produce lovely plants.

It is important to select good healthy stock from which to make cuttings. Pick only varieties that are capable of producing well-shaped, large flowers. My own favorite mum is a large yellow variety called Christopher Columbus. These mums will grow from 8 to 12 inches in height according to the growth of the plants from which they are taken.

Finally, to be sure that the plants produce the large blossoms that are desired, they must be restricted from one to three shoots and these should be disbudded so that only one bud remains on each shoot. Also, to restrict height of plant and to make its growth sturdy, tops of plants are pinched back with each repotting.

Since the longest part of the growing season is outdoors, it is really a simple method of raising beautiful chrysanthemums as pot plants. You can water the plants and spray them for aphids along with other bedded plants, and the pinching of the potted mums can be done along with the disbudding of those prize specimens that one grows outside. By the time the plants are moved into the house, the only remaining problem is that of supplying sufficient humidity. Thus it is very easy to provide colorful blossoms to combat the drab weather of January. Pick out some of your own prize specimens and make this delightful surprise come true for yourself.

do-it-yourself House Plants

Veronica Quist

It is fun to put seeds and other parts of fruits and vegetables in water or soil and watch them develop into plants. Vegetable tops and seeds of citrus fruits are full of surprises as they grow into unique house plants.

The idea of growing carrot tops for their foliage is an old one, but it may be new to those who have become accustomed to seeing only frozen, canned or specially packaged vegetables and are unaware of the dainty green plants to be had from them. From the leaf end of a carrot, cut off a couple of inches and set the cut end in water in a dessert dish or any shallow container. A good idea is to set it on a needle point holder to keep it firmly in place. Soon graceful, fernlike leaves will start growing into a decorative plant. A dish of water and pebbles, large enough to hold two or three carrot tops, makes an attractive centerpiece when the feathery foliage appears.

Another favorite is the sweet potato. Here it is better to have a narrow necked jar or container that will hold a sweet potato so that the bottom third is covered with water. Roots will grow into the water and soon foliage will reach out and trail around top of the glass. Strings may be fastened to the jar or an object nearby to give the vine something upon which to climb. Vines can be pinched back, allowed to trail around a window frame or trained on a decorative support.

Seeds of citrus fruits are fascinating plants to try. Orange, grapefruit and lemon seeds can be planted in containers of potting soil, covering them about 1/4-inch. Keep soil damp but not wet so that seeds will sprout and produce interesting little plants. Date pits also can be planted to make foliage plants.

A sprouting potato makes an intriguing plant. If placed cut side down in a shallow dish of water, white sprouts soon turn dark green. As water disappears, add more to keep cut side moist. One day you will discover fine white roots stretching along the dish. The queer looking sprouts cause much comment and after awhile some of them will unfold into leaves.

Half of a sprouting potato may be planted in soil. The dark, grotesque shoots make a weird looking plant for table or window sill. If given a reasonable amount of warmth and watered whenever soil becomes dry, you will soon have a young potato plant. With a little luck it will bud and blossom for you.

Onions too may be used as unusual plants when they have sprouted. Shoots will turn a bright green as they reach toward the light.

Another do-it-yourself plant may be had from fresh pineapple. A thick slice of the leaf top is cut from fruit. It may be set in water or firmly into wet sand in a shallow container. It will take root if kept moist and in the light.

Try some of these ideas for refreshing green during the winter. With a little imagination and some

Oatmeal Box To Doll Cradle

Elma Waltner

A sturdy, free-rocking doll cradle can be made from an oatmeal box, a few scraps of cardboard and cloth, plus covering material for the outside.

Remove the top and cut down length of box to bottom end with a sharp knife, cutting the two sides of the box so the piece which is removed is a bit smaller than the part left for the cradle. Thus the cradle portion is slightly more than half the box. Cut around end leaving it attached to the part of the box which will be used for the cradle. Glue cover in place. Cut down the bottom end of the box a little so it is somewhat lower than the lid end. This will be the foot of the cradle

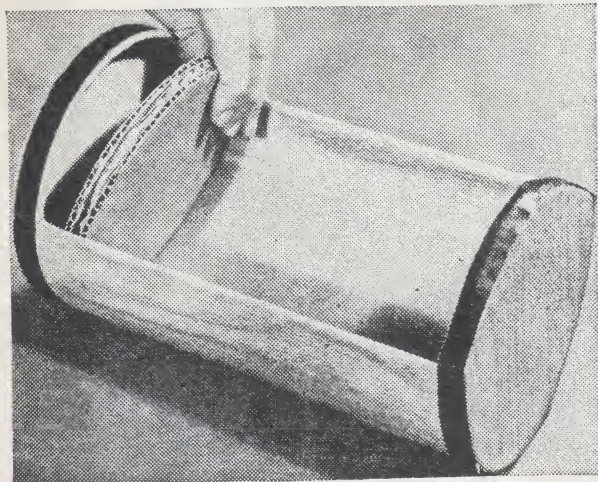

Photograph 1

(photograph 1). Cut several layers of corrugated cardboard (about three) same size and shape as foot end of cradle. Fit them against foot end on inside of cradle, trimming until they fit accurately. Glue these three thicknesses together but do not glue inside the cradle at this time.

Cover the outside and ends of the cradle. We used birch finish self adhering paper but it could be covered with any other kind of paper, or cloth, if you wish. Extend covering to inside of cradle at both sides and ends. Now glue the cardboard circle in place inside the head end of the cradle (photograph 2).

Photograph 2

Cut another circle of cardboard to fit inside the head end and one to fit inside the foot end. Cover these with flannel, quilted satin or any other material you wish to use for lining. Use the same material to cover inside curved portion of piece of box which you had cut away. Glue this curved cradle lining in place inside the cradle (photograph 3).

Doll Cradle

Glue lining against inside of foot, then against inside of the head (photograph 4).

Photograph 4

The doll cradle is now complete and needs only the addition of bedding to make it a cradle fit for a queen baby (photograph 5).

Photograph 5

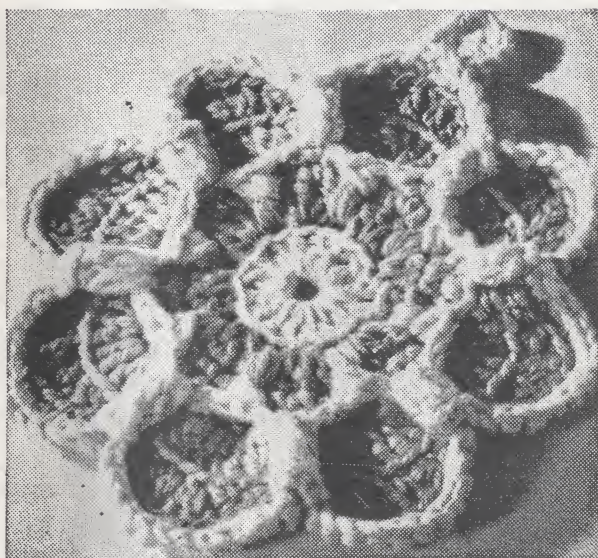

Built up of several thicknesses of cardboard, as it is, the cradle is surprisingly sturdy and will rock very nicely because of the true round contour of the box.

Ink from ball point pens can be especially difficult to remove from clothing. Try using a little cold cream on the stain.
